

WRT 205 – Valerie Solomon

Developing a focused explainer topic

As I've been reading through others' suggested additions to our canon, here are some issues that especially interest me:

- specific demographics and how they influence overall diversity (age, religion, etc.)
- how different aspects of a person's culture (language, mannerisms) can influence the communication between those of opposing demographics

Here are some ways in which these issues connect to other things we've read and/or to prior interests I have:

- Focusing on the idea of how different demographics influence the workplace's diversity, it comes to mind how earlier articles we focused on honed in specifically on diversity in terms of race and neurological abilities, but fellow classmates were able to expand on this providing the insight as to how demographics such as religion and age can further affect this

Looking at this list of connections, highlight key foundational concepts/ideas/terminology—list those here.

- Demographic
- Diversity
- Inclusion
- Cohesiveness

Review your list to the left—which of these issues do you think a person would need to understand in order to understand why this broader topic interests you? Circle them and prioritize—what's really important? What really intrigues you? Why?

- I think it is the most crucial to focus on the adaption in inclusivity within the workplace, no matter what demographic is being focused on. I think it is essential to provide this sense of inclusion alongside means of the idea of "freedom of expression", because building this environment within a workplace can have lasting beneficial effects.

Frame your project statement here: I think [X] is a really important topic in organizational culture, so I'm going to explain this foundational idea [Y] to you all. [In other words, you're going to focus on some very specific component that is essential to our understanding of the larger whole; you're going to articulate both the small bit and the Big Picture here.]

I think inclusion is a really important topic in organizational culture, so I'm going to explain this foundational idea of cultural and ethnical inclusion to you all.
